

Limitation:

After the router gets the ARP response, it could modify the packets' data and send directly rather than call `checkRoutingTable()` and `forwardPacket()` again, as if it is the first time the router sees these packets. The reason I did this is to reuse the code, but this behavior may potentially decrease the performance.